KINGS PRAIRIE

Why is it, because the Fourth of July is a big day that it will come a big rain and knock out a lot of big dinners?

The singing contest at Caltons took several from the Prairie last Sunday.

There was a lot of young braves on the Prairie the Fourth that had faces long enough to eat a bale of alfalfa hay. They had promised their best girls a high dry time but it misted and they mist it.

It is too much the custom to let stacking go for awhile until they finish corn plowing. This year the long continued warm rains caused the wheat on the outside of the shocks to sprout.

C. C. Carter is still suffering with his eye. It is necessary for him to visit the specialist in Springfield a day or so every week.

Since the warm rains the corn is doing what Dad did when he was running from that big white bear—doing its very best to get up and go.

Jake Carter's patch of corn is growing so fast he fears it will get thrown out of joint. But August is the vital time for the corn crop, let us go slow.

Prof. G. E. Stevenson is keeping close around for the last few days. He walks the floor at night and sleeps in the day time. He says, train up a child when it is little when it gets old it will not depart but that when it gets old it will keep him moving.

We hope the TIMES force had a good time the Fourth. Of course it was too wet to go fishing but they could get hungry just the same. As the Fourth came on Saturday and the next day was Sunday we fear by Monday some of them would forget how to spell their lesson.

E. R. Stribling went to the Marbut church last Sunday to fill the place of Rev. Goodnight.

At the close of the dry spell the blackberry crop was waning, but since the rains we are getting an additional crop.

Mrs. B. S. Stribling is still confined to her room most of the time.

The roads are getting good again. The joy riders know where to go from the number visiting the Prairie for good roads and sight seeing. When there is nothing ahead they can run as fast as they please, all we ask is to leave our corner post standing in making the turns.

The buzz of the thrasher is heard preparing the wheat for the miller, then the miller for the bakers.
